

لِلْعَالَمِينَ

THE ETIQUETTE OF THE YOUNG TOWARD THE ELDERLY

THE PREPARATORY LEVEL
STORY COLLECTION

Yahya went out with his father to the market to buy some household items. On their way, Yahya saw an old man leaning on his cane, trying to cross the busy street, but the old man appeared weak and barely able to stand.

Yahya said to his father, "Father, may I help the elderly man cross the street?"

His father, smiling, said, "Of course, my son.
Let's help him together."

With Yahya and his father's help, the elderly man was able to cross the street safely. He looked at them with gratitude and said, "May Allah bless you."

Yahya's father noticed the bus approaching and said, "Come on, Yahya, the bus is here.

Let's get on before we miss it and delay our shopping."

When Yahya and his father got on the bus, they sat in empty seats. A few minutes later, an elderly woman boarded the bus. She looked around but found no empty seat, so she stood next to Yahya, holding the bus handle, waiting for her next stop.

When Yahya saw this, he quickly got up from his seat and said,

"Please, ma'am, you can sit here."

The elderly woman was very happy and sat down, thanking him for his good manners and respect for the elderly.

Meanwhile, Yahya's father looked at him with pride and whispered in his ear, "Where did you learn these manners, Yahya?"

Yahya replied, "From the Quran teacher, father. He advised me to respect and serve the elderly."

Yahya's father said, "May Allah bless you and bless your Quran teacher."

لِلْعَالَمِينَ

The Preparatory Level
Story Collection